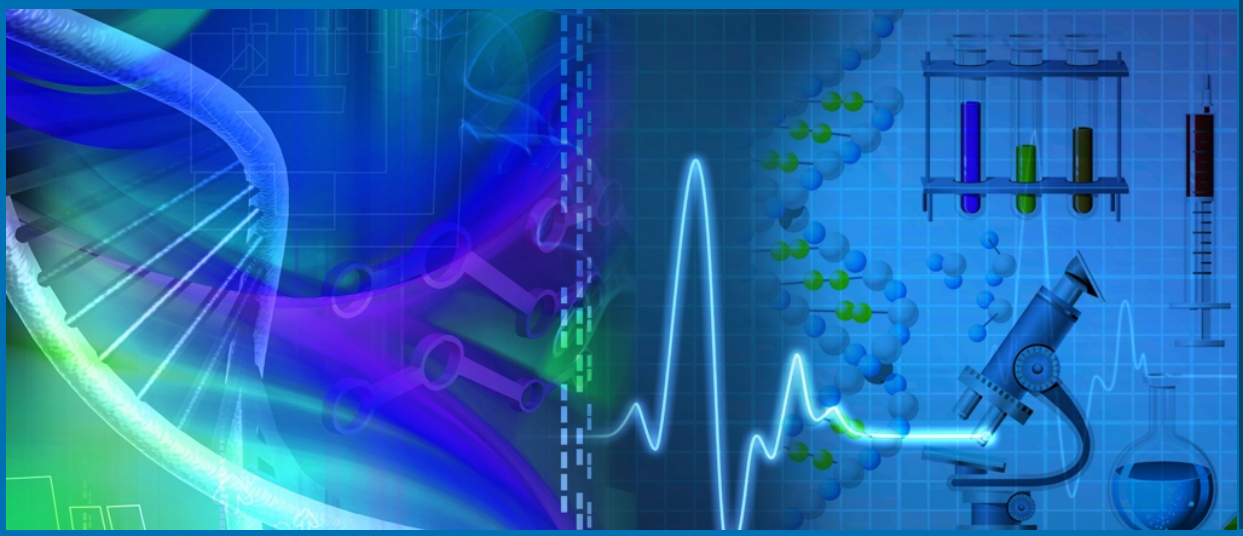
MphasiS Commercial Excellence Solution



MPHASIS
an HP company

In the past three years, the value generated by US companies in pharma segment has trailed far behind the S&P 500 average (a substantial lag of 30%). Hence, companies have begun to restructure and downsize on a large scale, with some reducing their headcount by a staggering 30% to 40%*. To sustain sales and satisfy stakeholders, organizations have realized to go beyond conventional sales and marketing approaches and concentrate on 'Commercial Excellence' (COX).

Commercial excellence goes beyond sales force effectiveness. It encompasses the full marketing mix and brings in customer centric focus in all communications, with a core objective of optimizing the commercial interactions. Ultimately, commercial excellence aims to maximize the impact of all commercial investments.

MphasiS Approach

Based on market trends, industry knowledge, and deep domain expertise, MphasiS Life Sciences has identified:

- Dimensions of Commercial Excellence
- Commercial Interaction Matrix

Commercial excellence can be accomplished by successful orientation of COX dimensions, and attainment of sales excellence and customer excellence. This will ultimately lead to optimal management of commercial interaction matrix.
